Notice!

Basically, even though this is just the prologue, we no longer have a Korean translator. This sucks. All our translators are Chinese or Japanese. Therefore, if we don't get a Korean to English translator, we will be forced to drop this series. We're very sorry. This inconveniences us, too. We would like to translate this with you, and can PM you on Baidu (username is WOEBS), or go to our website (which is the coolest) and email us on the contact section. I would be willing to do this as a favor, and if another group would like to pick this series up entirely, I won't be angry. I'm excited to hear your opinions. We thought this would be a fun little project with, because it's still something.
